

How to Enrol and Vote

A guide for Service Personnel

Why Vote

The Constitution of India grants its every eligible citizen, regardless of gender, education, socio economic status or location - a right to vote and every vote counts the same

When few people vote, a small percentage ends up electing the winning candidate who is supposed to represent the majority. This is not true democracy.

The power of 1— there are many recorded cases of candidates having won or lost by one vote

Participation, Elections, Democracy

When citizens do not become electors and electors do not vote, we have a democracy deficit

Elections do not belong to political parties. They belong to people.

Elections reinforce democracy only when citizens fully participate

Unique Stories of Inclusion

Women from Dadaal in Rajasthan, who had never participated in elections due to socio-cultural reasons voted for the first time ever since the independence of the country in post SVEEP Assembly elections in 2013.

After efforts for SVEEP, two members of the Shompen tribe of Great Nicobar, considered to be one of the last surviving stone-age tribes, voted for the first time in Lok Sabha elections 2014.

SVEEP through its facilitation measures ensured that every voter gets to exercise their franchise, as polling stations were created for a single household in Serdanand in Chhattisgarh and even a single voter in Gir, Gujarat.

Despite difficult terrain and security issues, Jammu & Kashmir had a record turnout of 49.72% in Lok Sabha elections 2014, a significant increase of 10.05% over 2009, due to exhaustive SVEEP programme in the State.
